Whitewater Rafting Trips

Our Colorado River rafting trip through Cataract Canyon takes us through the heart of Canyonlands National Park, with just the right balance between leisurely floating, incredible hiking, and fast moving whitewater rapids. This 100-mile journey along the Colorado River departs from Moab, Utah and finishes at the upper end of Lake Powell (see map). With no dam to control the spring run off from the Colorado Rockies, in high water (generally in mid-May - June), the Colorado River combines with the Green River at the Confluence and produces some of the greatest white water rafting in North America. From late June on, Colorado River rafting is more moderate but still exhilarating.

The trip ends on Lake Powell at Hite Marina. If you choose to return to Moab, via the scenic charter flight, (see "Optional Flight" below) you will have the rare opportunity to enjoy a birds'-eye-view of the Colorado River and the surrounding Canyonlands National Park area. This canyon country is without question, some of the most rugged wilderness on earth, yet some of the most beautiful and intriguing - it demands to be seen and experienced.

The 3 Day Canyon Express is a white water rafting trip for those who have a shorter amount of time but want to experience the grandeur of Cataract Canyon. On day one we will motor the 49 miles of calm water to the confluence of the mighty Colorado and the Green rivers. During this first day you will enjoy some short interpretive hikes with your guides to some ancient Anasazi Petroglyphs. Day two you will run the rapids that have made this canyon famous. Day three will be taking us across Lake Powell to Hite Marina where the adventure continues with a *(optional) scenic airflight back to Moab over Canyonlands National Park.

What To Expect:

The trip meets at our office on Riversands Road where you can park your car at our enclosed property. The trip begins with a beautiful drive up the river corridor where the Colorado River wanders through some of the most spectacular landscape in America. This section of river runs along the border of Arches National Park and there are several rapids that are splashy and fun.

There is plenty of time for relaxing in the sun, swimming, and you'll enjoy a buffet style lunch along the way. All the water and lemonade you can drink is available on the boats at all times. If you'd like a little more excitement join others in the group in a paddle boat or get even more in to it by paddling an inflatable kayak. Use of inflatable kayaks are FREE of charge on these trips.

What should I bring to the river?

Wanting all to come prepared for a great white water rafting experience, we recommend the following attire for the river:

- Shorts or swimming suit
- Tennis shoes and/or sandals
- Hat or visor
- Sunglasses (don't forget your safety straps - the water can get wild!)
- Sunscreen
- Waterbottle (optional)

Things We Provide:

- Rafts (row raft, paddle raft, or inflatable kayaks - no extra charge!)
- Type V Coast Guard-approved life jackets
- Guides to take you through the rapids
- Dry bags to protect necessities such as cameras
- Memories to last a lifetime!
